General Conference Information

Location
All meetings will take place in the Kent Student Center, a three-minute walk from the Beall-McDowell housing complex across the scenic campus.

Parking
If you bring a vehicle to the conference parking will be assigned to you on campus when you check in at registration.

Eating, Drinking, Recreational Facilities
Information on food service and recreation on and around campus will be provided to you at conference registration. Information about local churches will also be provided for your convenience. In general, some of the recreational facilities you will find available in the area include Geauga Lake Park, Sea World, Blossom Music Center, KSU Ice Arena, several golf courses, and theaters. A list of area restaurants will be available at registration as well.

Transportation to and from Kent
Kent State is located in Kent, Ohio, and can be reached by car from I-76 from the south and I-480, I-271 and I-80 (the Ohio Turnpike) from the north. In addition, both the Akron-Canton and Cleveland Hopkins Airports offer daily commercial airline service to the area. There is also a limousine service between Hopkins Airport and Kent on a daily basis (except Saturday). Local taxi service is also available.

Registration Information
During Thursday afternoon and evening the registration and information desk for check-in will be located at the Beall-McDowell housing complex. During the day on Friday, this information and service will be moved to the lobby of the Kiva in the Student Center.
Book Exhibit

Neil Barron estimates that between 200 and 300 titles will be exhibited, depending upon publisher cooperation. This will be the first time most of the in-print English language scholarship has been assembled in a single place, aside from a very few libraries. Most of the books will be nonfiction dealing with SF, fantasy and horror fiction and cinema, from university, fan/specialty and trade publishers. Fiction (and some non-fiction) by attending writers in multiple copies will be for sale and autographing, and some writers may provide copies of their books which are out of print or unavailable in U.S. editions. All books will be for sale. Those by attending writers — many of them mass market paperbacks — will be sold at list price. The others will be sold on a bid basis, with the minimum bid established by the publisher (usually fifty percent of list).

A comprehensive catalog of all books on display will be supplied free to paid registrants and invited guests. Additional copies will be available at $3.00 each ($4.00 if mailed).

You can save a lot of money on the purchase of these bid books, as well as support scholarship, so please bring your checkbooks. The success of this display will depend heavily on at least moderate sales, not only of books by attending writers but of books by your fellow scholars. More complete details are provided in the display catalog.

Books will be displayed in room 319, Friday, 8 a.m.-6 p.m., Saturday, 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. and Sunday, 8 to 11:30 a.m.

Special Exhibitions

The Kent State University Library will have a special exhibition for the conference in the glass display cases on the first floor of the building. The Library is the tallest building on campus (twelve stories) and is across the plaza from the Student Center where all the meetings will be held.

Membership in SFRA

You need not be a member of SFRA to attend the annual conference, but you must register. Members received registration information and a blue form for registration in the April NEWSLETTER. If you need another form, write directly to D.M. Hassler, English Department, Kent State University, Kent, Ohio 44242.

Other inquiries concerning the details of the conference may be directed to the University Conference Bureau, 211A KSC, Kent State University, Kent, Ohio 44242, (216) 672-3161.

The Science Fiction Research Association (SFRA) is the oldest professional organization for the study of science fiction and fantasy. Founded in 1970, the SFRA was organized to improve classroom teaching; encourage and assist scholarship; and evaluate and publicize new books, new teaching methods and materials, and allied media performances. Professor Thomas D. Clareson was SFRA’s first President.

The SFRA edits a biannual volume: provides reduced-rate subscriptions to academic journals; produces other publications which would not exist were it not for SFRA; and holds national meetings at which members deliver formal papers, discuss ideas, meet science fiction and fantasy authors and present the Pilgrim Award for outstanding contributions to science fiction and fantasy scholarship.

SFRA enrolls nearly 500 members from twenty different countries. These include students, teachers and professors at all levels, librarians, futurologists, readers, authors, booksellers, editors, publishers, and scholars of many disciplines. Academic affiliation is not a requirement for membership.
